

AMERICAN INDIAN AND ALASKA NATIVE STUDENTS INTERESTED IN A CAREER IN HEALTHCARE

JOIN US VIRTUALLY: OCTOBER 2, 2020, 10 AM TO 6 PM EDT

SPECIAL PRE-ADMISSIONS WORKSHOP

SUNY Upstate Medical University and the Association of American Indian Physicians (AAIP) invites American Indian and Alaska Native students interested in careers in health care to a fully virtual one-day pre-Admissions Workshop (PAW). PAW provides students with the information to succeed in the admission process for healthcare studies and medical school. Student participants will learn about admissions processes, financial resources, special opportunities for American Indian and Alaska Native students and hear from others who have succeeded in this exciting field.

The deadline to apply is Tuesday, September 15, 2020.

ABOUT AAIP The Association of American Indian Physicians (AAIP) seeks to accomplish its mission by offering educational programs, services and activities that motivate American Indian and Alaska Native students to remain in the academic pipeline and to pursue a career in the health professions and/or biomedical research. AIP also provides leadership in various health care arenas affecting American Indians and Alaska Natives such as diabetes mellitus, HIV/AIDS, domestic violence, and methamphetamine use.

ABOUT UPSTATE MEDICAL UNIVERSITY With educational programs for an array of healthcare professions – including nursing, physical therapy, radiation therapy, perfusion, biomedical research, respiratory therapy, imaging, MD, and public health practitioner – Upstate offers a gateway to meaningful and rewarding futures for those dedicated to helping others.
