

Christine Mirzayan Science & Technology Policy Graduate Fellowship Program

The National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine's Christine Mirzayan Science & Technology Policy Graduate Fellowship Program is announcing that May 1, 2017 is the opening date for the application. The program is a full-time hands-on training and educational program. Each year, applicants from around the world become part of an Academies' committee, board, or unit and are assigned to a mentor and learn about the world of science and technology policy. Graduate and professional school students and those who have completed graduate studies within the last five years are eligible to apply.

The Program provides Fellows with the opportunity to spend 12 weeks at the National Academies in Washington, DC learning about science and technology policy and the role that the scientific, engineering, and medical communities play in advising the nation.

Each year, applicants from around the world become part of an Academies' committee, board, or unit, assigned to a mentor and learn about the world of science and technology policy. The program is designed to broaden fellows' appreciation of employment opportunities outside of traditional academic careers, expand their ability to incorporate S&T policy in academia, and provide them with a firm grasp of the important and dynamic role of science and technology in government decision-making as well as with a better understanding of the role that they can play in strengthening the science and technology enterprise for the betterment of mankind.

Applications for a session are due the fall before the session begins. Questions and answers about the program are available at http://sites.nationalacademies.org/PGA/policyfellows/PGA\_044690#Deadline. A fellowship stipend is provided to offset living expenses during the fellowship period. The deadline is in the fall before the session.
